Editorial goes back on the air

Tirsell complained about equal time

LIVERMORE — George Riesing, general manager of KPIX-TV, Channel 5, threw more light yesterday on that Channel 5 editorial on Las Positas new town which had Livermore Mayor Helen Tirsell so annoyed last week.

Tirsell told The Times she thought KPIX had been unfair in the way it arrived at its conclusions endorsing New Town.

The mayor also felt the city had been treated unfairly in the timing of the KPIX editorial. The editorial was broadcast on Tuesday prior to the supervisors considering it on Thursday. The city had a chance to rebut, but it wouldn't be broadcast until noon, Thursday, two hours before the supervisors were expected to vote on the issue.

Although no policy was violated, Tirsell thinks that KPIX's procedures were not in the spirit of the equal time policy laid down by the Federal Communications Commission. She wants to write the FCC and complain about it.

Riesing yesterday told The Times he agrees the timing of the broadcast was unfortunate. He thought the supervisors were in the preliminary stages of discussing New Town and the city therefore had plenty of time to get its side on the air before the final vote.

When Riesing learned the vote was imminent, he ordered the pro-New Town editorial taken off the air. Now that there has been a three week delay in the supervisors' decision, he will run the editorial again and plans to offer city officials another chance to rebut.

Riesing said that Livermore City Attorney Gary Reiners was aware of the

Trainer, dogs played role in girl search

PLEASANTON — Bill Schilp's sentry dogs were the eye of controversy a couple of years ago. Now they just missed being the center in a hailstorm of praise.

Nine-year-old Lisa Dickinson was riding her bike through Heather Farms Park in Walnut Creek when she disappeared a year ago. Her body has never been found.

Searches and leads hit dead ends before Schilp was called in. He thinks they might have found something, and those now dusty theories differ radically from current conclusions.

Once he was blamed for every stray dog who came off the Pleasanton Ridge as neighbors fought zoning for his guard dog center. He tried to tell them what his dogs really do, but no one would listen, he laments.

Louis R. Fresquez, 34, was arrested and convicted on 20 counts of kidnapping, rape and sex perversion shortly after Lisa's disappearance. Police have always tried to link him to her case.

Schilp is skeptical. He was called into the case by a private detective, "a friend," he says, who was working with a medium in Texas.

"I take that with a grain of salt," Schilp says, "but it was freaky."

The detective drove through Heather Farms and talked to the medium on a car telephone. The medium described the area, telling the detective just where Lisa's bike was found, describing the wooden bridge, bends and forks in the canal "and everything," Schilp says. "But I rely on my dogs."

Three dogs, one from his center and two students' dogs, scoured Heather Farms. Two of the dogs hit on the same spot in the canal.

"There was something in there," he says. "We don't know what it was, but something dead was in there."

But without the proper equipment and "official" sanction, the search was lost.

He even tried to arrange for the "Wolf Team," a set of snow dogs

"conditioned to look for dead scent," to join the search. But again was foiled by the lack of "official" sanction.

Livermore coed killed in New Jersey

EWING TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — A graduate student, found murdered this weekend on the Trenton State College campus here, often practiced piano near the stage where her body was discovered, say members of the local theater group.

The battered body of Sigrid Stevenson, 25, of Livermore, Calif., was discovered Sunday at center stage in Kendall Hall on the college campus here, authorities said.

Sigrid was the daughter of Peter Stevenson, of 4352 Emory Way.

Theater group member E. Sidney Porcelain of Rocky Hill, said he believed Miss Stevenson arrived on campus early and was staying in the building.

Only about 50 students and staff members were on the 210-acre campus at the time of the incident, authorities said. The school's dormitories are about a half-mile from the auditorium where Miss Stevenson's body was discovered.

Classes at the college are to begin Thursday.

Asst. Mercer County Prosecutor Paul O'Gara said there was no sign of forced entry in the building. He said the auditorium was used Saturday by the theater group. Miss Stevenson was not in the play, he said.

Although O'Gara declined to comment on the cause of death, Ernest Rydell, assistant to the college president, said he was told Miss Stevenson had been beaten severely. "There was a question if she was strangled, beaten or both," he said.

Ewing Township Police Chief Calvin Steeply said police had searched outside the building for a weapon, but he declined to reveal if one had been found.

Authorities would not comment on whether Miss Stevenson had been sexually assaulted.

Her body was discovered by campus police at 11:30 a.m. Sunday. Rydell said a patrolman entered the auditorium because he was curious about a bicycle chained outside.

First day of school

Today is the first day of school in the Livermore Valley and Murray school districts.

Approximately 13,700 in Livermore are expected to attend the district's 20 schools. The elementary schools and junior high schools open at 8:30 a.m. Del Valle and Livermore High Schools have scheduled registration for different times tomorrow and begin classes Thursday. Granada High School students report today, returning students at 8:15 a.m. and new students at 9:30 a.m. Admission Day, Monday, Sept. 12, is a school holiday.

Classes in the Murray School District begin today, also.

Murray schools will observe Friday as the Admission Day holiday with both schools and central district offices closed. Classes will resume Monday.

Women's face slashed

A North K Street resident in Livermore answered her ringing doorbell Saturday evening and was scratched across the face by a man with game cock spurs taped to his fingers, police reported.

The 21-year-old woman said she opened her door to an unknown man who swung at her face while wearing the sharp metal spurs. Police said the woman had numerous scratches across her face, none of which bled.

The suspect, described as a white man about 5 foot 8 and 140 pounds, fled the area in a small red car. The investigation is continuing.

Livermore, VCSD sued for pollution

The long-expected law suit from Alameda County Water District against Valley Community Services District and City of Livermore over alleged pollution of the Fremont underground water supply was filed last week.

The suit asks for $1 million in damages and for injunctive relief to put a stop to the alleged pollution of the underground water.

Treated effluent from the Livermore and VCSD sewage treatment plants flows into Alameda Creek, as does Fremont's "fresh" water supply from Lake Del Valle.

Fremont uses the "fresh" water to replenish its underground water supply.

The "fresh" water also is supposed to keep salty San Francisco Bay water from getting into the underground water.

Fremont, or rather its water agency, ACWD, wants VCSD and Livermore to quit dumping its salty water into Alameda Creek.

ACWD had held back its suit to see what the Valley would do about building the "super sewer pipeline". One form of financing for the plan went down to defeat last November at the hands of voters in Dublin and Livermore, but LAVVMA has decided to build it anyway with another form of financing. Other things have caused a delay in carrying out the plan, but LAVVMA appears to be working diligently to carry out the plan.

The only modifier appears to be an initiative by the CARD Committee in Pleasanton which would put the whole question of pipeline financing on the ballot there, if the initiative is successful.

None of the attorneys on either side of ACWD's law suit was available yesterday for comment.

Parking lot lease terms okayed

LIVERMORE — The city council last night agreed to conditions set down by land owner-representative John Regan for a one-year lease on the merchants' parking lot.

Local merchants subsidized the parking lot through a city imposed surcharge. The negotiated lease price of $20, which is $204 more than the city had previously offered, would mean no increase to merchants.

The current lease, set to expire September 30, was extended to June 30, 1978.

In an August 1 letter, Regan demanded a 90-day termination option, plus additional rental based on increases in property taxes since fiscal year 1971-72.

Regan's terms were "the only ones which we (the property owners) will consider," he wrote.

City Manager Bill Parness asked that the 90-day termination option be shortened to 30 days in case an alternate parking solution could be negotiated.

City staff and the chamber of commerce would work together on an alternate parking proposal which could be ready within nine months, Parness said.

City Attorney Gary Reiners said the 90-day option period was acceptable, because no land deal could be rapped up in a month.

The 30-day termination option would essentially make for a month-to-month tenant, Reiners warned.

On a motion by Councilperson John Staley, the council unanimously voted to continue negotiations for a one year lease on Regan's terms.

Flasher exposes himself to five 12-year-olds

LIVERMORE — Five 12-year-old girls examining the Mendenhall School grounds Friday, prior to the start of the new school year, were the victims of an exhibitionist, police reported.

Two students were standing near the Language Arts building when a man whistled at them from behind. They saw the suspect and ran away, officers said.

Three girls walking towards the Science Building said a man followed them for 15 minutes and then exposed himself.

Police said they were looking for a white man in his early 30s, 5 foot 10 or 11, with a pot belly and a pony tail as a possible suspect.

Burglar alarm scares off prowler at Hap's

PLEASANTON — A ringing burglar alarm apparently frightened away burglars who forced their way into Hap's Restaurant at 122 West Neal St. early Saturday, police reported.

Officers arrived at the scene and found an electric can opener lying on the ground near a window, apparently discarded by the fleeing burglars.

Police said the prowlers attempted to enter a rear window and set off a burglar alarm. A footprint was lifted from a chair inside the restaurant.

There are no suspects.

Officer Jim Balducci flies above the highway as fellow officers below catch speeders the helicopter pilot observes from the air. By Dan Rosenstrauch

Police in the Air Nab Cars Below

DANVILLE — You might not see him, but he sees you.

He is the pilot of the California Highway Patrol helicopter being used to keep watch over Contra Costa County highways.

This past week alone, some 150 drivers have looked to the sky in disbelief after learning they had been caught speeding by an eye in the sky.

"That south-bound yellow car is passing everybody," officer Jim Balducci observed Friday as he piloted the craft along Interstate 680 in search of tailgaters and speeders.

The yellow car's speeding was very obvious from the sky as it whizzed past other vehicles.

"Watch him. He'll change lanes to pass that red car," Balducci predicted. And the car did.

When Balducci or his partner Terry Horan spot a car cruising past others, they radio the description to a patrolman on the ground.

The ground unit, stationed discreetly off the freeway, lets the subject vehicle pass then falls in behind.

He's pulling you along," Balducci radios the ground unit, indicating that the space between the two vehicles has remained constant.

The ground patrolman observed that he is traveling 70 miles per hour. On goes his red light and the pursuit begins.

The driver of the speeding vehicle soon pulls over to the side of the highway.

While the patrolman on the ground completes the job of issuing a ticket and listening to the speeder's excuses, Balducci and Horan are off looking for other violators, particularly truckers, who according to the officers, often try to intimidate other motorists by tailgating them.

Truck drivers are frequently heard broadcasting the location of CHP patrol cars over their citizen band radios. But Capt. Joe Barnett of the Martinez CHP office said he's keeping it no secret that the CHP is increasing its patrol efforts both on the ground and from the air.

He said the CHP wants to save lives, and just knowing there could be a cop watching overhead might cause some drivers to slow down.

But not in all cases as one of the officers noted. Just last week a woman stopped for speeding said she was well aware of a helicopter overhead, but thought it was just another radio station aircraft broadcasting information on the commute traffic.

Policeman named to county unit

PLEASANTON — The person responsible for cutting San Jose's police brutality complaints in half has been appointed to the Alameda County Human Relations Commission.

Stanley Kephart, 37, a Pleasanton resident, hopes he will be able to bring some of the expertise learned in the San Jose program to the commission's standing committee on police-community relations.

As a police officer on the San Jose force, Kephart feels he can bring a different perspective to police-community relations and the sensitive area of minority allegations about police brutality.

He lobbied long and hard on his San Jose force to get a $191,000 program to train rookies and do in-service training to show police officers how to handle hot-tempered situations without resorting to their weapons.

Basically the officers learn how to get in touch with their own feelings, how to try to calm a situation, and, if necessary, how to use martial arts skills. It's all better than relying on the hardware, whether a lethal service revolver or rubber bullets, said Kephart.

"Police officers have to requalify every six months with their service arms," said Kephart. "But they have not had to requalify every six months on other methods of dealing with people, even though they may have been on the force for the past 10 or 15 years."

So in San Jose now they do have to check in with Kephart and learn, or relearn, techniques designed to resolve conflicts without any guns blazing.

"I'm not saying take the guns away from police," said Kephart. "But an officer needs to have alternatives. A lot of things the community identifies as police brutality is really the absence of proper training."

I feel that police officers who are ill-equipped with techniques in crises situations will escalate force."

Kephart has a long list of public service credentials, including Valley co-chair of the Alameda County Mental Health Advisory Committee. He also is a member of the California Teachers Association. He got his Master's degree in Education with emphasis in police education from the University of San Francisco in June.

Kephart holds a black belt in the Shotokan style of karate and consults with the Law Enforcement Division of the United States Karate Association.

He also is a consultant to the Butte College police science program, the Santa Clara Center for Criminal Justice, the Palo Alto Women's Peace Officers, and the California Institute of Specialized Training.

Valley man guarded

A 35-year-old Livermore man remains in guarded condition at Valley Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries he sustained when his car went out of control and crashed into a tree on Stanley Boulevard Sunday morning, the highway patrol reported.

Richard Ross Fenrich of 1773 Fifth St. was west-bound on Stanley Boulevard about 3 a.m. Sunday when he tried to pass a car, lost control of his vehicle and ran into a tree on the opposite side of the roadway. High-powered "jaws of life" shears were used to free Fenrich from his car.

No other persons were involved in the accident. The cause of the crash is still under investigation.

Schools seek articulation improvement

SAN RAMON— English and language arts teachers from three Valley school districts held the first of what is hoped will be an annual series of meetings Tuesday to improve articulation between districts and grade levels.

The 35 teachers present heard Amador and Pleasanton schools superintendent Bruce Newlin note the accomplishments of local districts in the face of the Hart Act (AB 3408) mandate.

"We look forward to the day when we have articulation in English and language arts from kindergarten through grade 12," commented Newlin.

The luncheon program featured a discussion of the college freshman reading and writing skills center at Chabot College Valley Campus, with English instructors Hal Lubin, Ellen Owens, and David Wright explaining how the reading and writing centers operate.

Though approximately 45 per cent of students entering Chabot meet entrance standards in language arts, Lubin said all students are enrolled in English X.

From this class, which provides a measure of the student's skills in language arts, they are assigned to English 100 W (writing) or English 100 R (reading). The latter two are for those who are not quite up to college standards in the two.

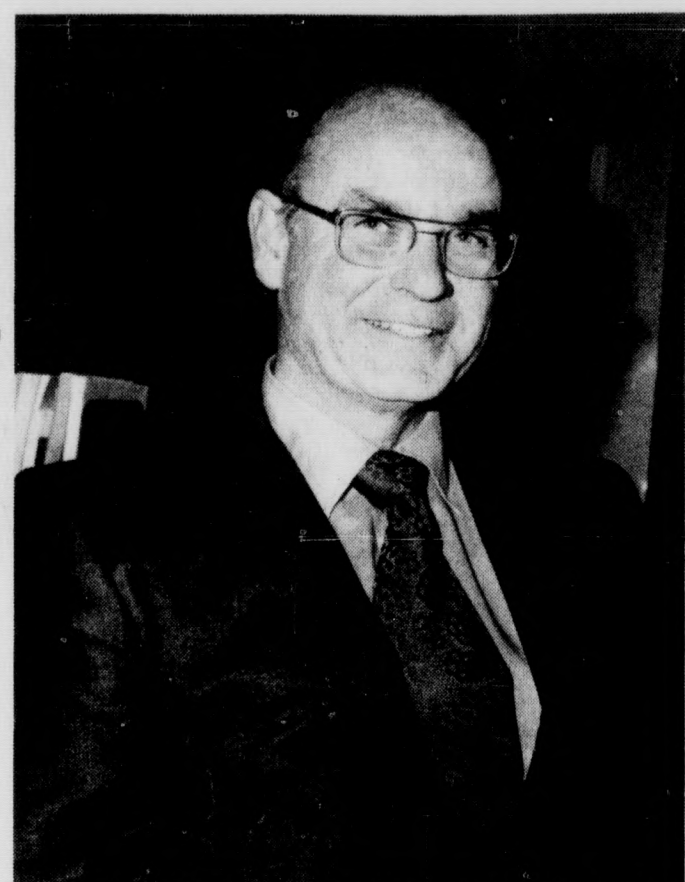

Wright, who has been at Chabot 12 years, said instruction is divided into 10 areas— with 10 booklets, audio tapes for each.

The booklets deal with specific aspects of the total subject— such as run-together sentences.

Students enrolled in the classes are given a contract at the outset of the course. As they successfully complete each segment, their contract is filled in and signed by the instructor.

Ms. Owens, a member of the Chabot staff for 14 years, said they were charged with finding a program in the area of English and language arts "that would be as effective or more effective than past programs. From this came the reading center."

Neil Sweeney, assistant superintendent for instruction in the Amador and Pleasanton districts, spoke on the articulation committee, commenting that "the idea of skills centers has lots of possibilities for us down the line. It's important that we be together in our goals. We need to identify those 'gaps' in each of our language arts programs."

Neil Sweeney: Important that districts get together on common goals.

Dr. Neal Cavanaugh, chairman of the English department at Foothill High School as well as the four-district articulation committee, closed the meeting by presenting the English/ language arts booklet.

The booklet is a compendium of objectives, assessment examinations, evaluation forms, and a basic words list.

Earlier in the meeting, Newlin had praised teachers in the Valley districts for their efforts in putting the booklet together.

Also speaking was Dr. Jessie Kobayashi, superintendent of the Murray School District.

SR schools ponder year-round pilot plan

DANVILLE — The Citizens Committee on Year-Round Schools last night recommended to San Ramon Unified School District trustees that a pilot program commence July 1, 1978.

Committee Chairperson Joan Marsh, in presenting the report, said the panel recommends implementation in at least two elementary schools.

The organizational plan recommended is the 45/15 modified so that all holidays and vacation periods approximate the traditional calendar.

At the same time, the panel indicated that double sessions "will be required... insofar as the enrollment at the elementary level should exceed the number of students that can be housed at both year-round and traditional schools."

Mrs. Marsh characterized the findings and recommendations as "no panacea or cure-all."

The report says that due to cost involved, the committee, "is reluctant to recommend implementation of the pilot program at any non-air conditioned school." It is also urged that attendance at the selected schools be mandatory for students residing in those attendance areas.

Trustees received a high bid of $455,000 from the LDS Church after spirited bidding with two other organizations for purchase of the 7.9 acre Sycamore site, adjacent to the Education Center.

In other business, Superintendent Alan Petersdorf said the first school day enrollments count for San Ramon schools was 13,232. Heaviest class loads were at Greenbrook and Green Valley.

The master of the elevator left hand, as one New York critic recently put it, combined with guitar and vibes, is alive and plays as well as ever!

We first became a fan of George Shearing's more than 20 years ago. That distinctive sound of the locked-hands piano touch and velvet-smooth vibraphone has not changed.

Shearing and his four jazz associates played to packed audiences last weekend at the Paul Masson Mountain Vineyards just above Saratoga.

His appearance is part of the annual "Vintage Sounds" that the winery presents each year. Actually, the outdoor concerts lead off in early summer with classical programs and follow in late summer and fall with offerings from the jazz idiom.

Shearing will be followed this weekend by the L.A. Four, flutist Bud Shank, drummer Shelley Manne, bassist Ray Brown, and guitarist Laurindo Almeida. Then comes bassist Ron Carter and his group, Sept. 17 and 18, followed by "The Great Guitars," featuring Charlie Byrd, which is sold out.

The awesome and picturesque setting of the Paul Masson Vineyards is about an hour's drive from the Valley (going south on 680, down to Highway 17 and on to Los Gatos).

Shearing featured many of the tunes he is identified with, including "Lullaby of Birdland," "I'll Be Around," "East of the Sun," and "Roses of Picardy." But he also went afieled to play Streisand's hit from "A Star is Born," the "Love Story" theme and the Beatles' classic "Eleanor Rigby."

His deft technical mastery of the piano, in tandem with bassist Rusty Jones was much apparent on the latter selection.

Shearing is not one to just play and not directly communicate with his audience. He does so through brief explanations of certain numbers and humorous asides.

His performance last Saturday evoked memories of the "good ol' days" in San Francisco when jazz and dixie aficionados trekked back and forth between the Blackhawk at Turk & Hyde and the Hangover up on Bush Street... the days of Earl "Fatha" Hines, Bob Scobey and Clancy Hayes, Burt Bales, Errol Garner ad infinitum.

Shearing closed the concert with a rendition of a favorite Garner piece, in memory of the late stylist who died less than a year ago.

The Music Man—"In Person!"—will be nearby a week from Friday when the Contra Costa Musical Theatre production of "Music Man" debuts at the Civic Arts Theatre in downtown Walnut Creek.

The one-and-only Meredith Willson will be at the Boundary Oak Restaurant for a press gathering at noon on the 16th and again that night he'll meet the public after the CCMT's premiere performance of his work.

The CCMT production is directed by Jonathan R. Lehman and will also play Saturday the 17th and Fridays and Saturdays thereafter through Oct. 15.

"Someone's Got to Play the Palace."

And someone will have to be swift afoot to catch this vaudeville presentation which also debuts on the 16th.

The music and comedy offering is set for the Willows Theatre in the shopping center on Concord's Willow Pass Road.

Curtain time is 8 p.m.

Tickets for this show are available at the Walnut Creek Civic Center Box Office (as are the Music Man duets), the Concord Civic Center box office and at the Willows Theatre, phone 798-6525.

This Friday and Saturday, the spotlight will be on comedy at the Willows in Concord when Lou Felder of "Fernwood Tonite" and Mark McCollum, a Laugh-In runnerup, vie for chuckles and guffaws.

They'll be joined by Timothy Barron of the Evening Show and John Hofstetter, a Los Angeles comic.

First straight line is set for 8 p.m.

Music variety at Concord

Cultural variety seems to be the key with Concord Pavilion fare this week.

Area concertgoers can view a colorful Mexican folklore extravaganza, see bluesman Taj Mahal with the Oakland Symphony or view rock artist Jackson Brown in three upcoming evenings.

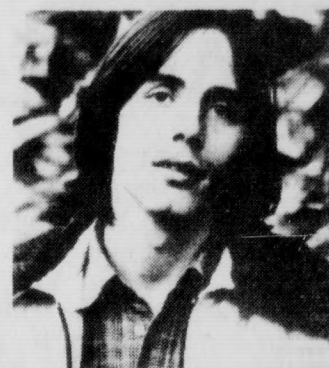

On Friday, Sept. 9, "Fiesta Folklorico," presented by Ballet Folklorico Mexicano de Graciela Tapia comes to the Pavilion. Swirling skirts, colorful costumes and exuberant dances characterize the "South of the Border" blend of folk music and dancing.

The show, which costs $5.50 and $6.50 for reserved seating and $4.50 and $2.50 for lawn seating, is scheduled for 8 p.m.

Next, rhythm and blues artist Taj Mahal will combine with the Oakland Symphony at the Pavilion Saturday, Sept. 10 at 8 p.m. for an unusual concert. Mahal, whose personal interpretations of traditional black American music has revitalized the country folk scene, puts some old favorites into his repertoire. The concert will be directed by Harold Faberman, and tickets range from $6 to $12. Finally, rock star Jackson Browne comes to the Pavilion in a Bill Graham-sponsored event. Tickets for the Sunday, Sept. 11 show, which starts at 2 p.m., are $6.50 for lawn seating, which was all that was available at press time.

Andy Griffith goes from Mayberry to White House

LOS ANGELES AP — Think of Andy Griffith and you may think of a good old boy who'd rather loaf than labor. But lately he's been busier than a flute player's upper lip during the William Tell Overture.

Last night, the country boy who sprang to fame as a rustic sheriff on CBS for eight years popped up as President of the United States in the opening stanza of ABC's "Washington Behind Closed Doors."

And last week, he was at MGM, finishing the second of two TV movies — playing Abel Marsh, a gunless sheriff at a California lake resort — in what he hopes will become a one-hour weekly series on NBC.

Griffith, 45, a tall, surprisingly intense native of Mt. Airy, N.C., said his new venture is the third version of an idea he's been hot on for several years, a rural cop show featuring both humor and mystery.

He said the first version aired on ABC about three years ago — with him in it — as a movie called "Winter Kill." He wanted to make it a series but the network didn't.

Despite high ratings, he said, "they choose not to have it on the air as a series because it showed earth instead of asphalt."

"They were afraid — because I have a Southern accent and the show was set in a small town — that right away it was 'Green Acres' or 'Petticoat Junction.'"

Things moldered until writer, Lane Slate, did a similar show about a lake resort sheriff, a James Garner movie called "They Only Kill Their Masters," Griffith said.

Then, he added, he and his long-time partner, Richard O. Linke, consulted with Slate, struck a deal with both Slate and NBC to make two Sheriff Abel Marsh movies, and began filming at Big Bear, Calif.

Griffith spoke of all this while consuming commissary eats with Linke, an MGM press agent and a visiting scribe.

He also discussed with Linke assorted battle plans to publicize his Sept. 20 film, including an appearance on the Dinah Shore show, a five-city tour and 33 telephone interviews in three days. Hope also was expressed a booking on NBC's "Today" show could be arranged.

Griffith, who seemed a bit harried, said all this concentrated drum-beating was necessary. The air date of his first "Abel" had been moved up a month, shortening the time he has to urge folks to watch it.

If a lot of folks watch it, NBC could order it as a series. And a series is definitely what the tall Tarheel wants to do.

The star of the successful "Andy Griffith Show" and unsuccessful "New Andy Griffith Show" grinned when reminded that TV's oldest cliché is that of the exhausted star vowing never to do another series.

"Well, I thought that at one time," conceded the broadshouldered ex-high school teacher. "But all actors, when they're working real hard, don't want to work. 'But when they're not working, they want to work. We're all that way.'"

Reiners was unavailable for comment yesterday. Channel 5's editorial researcher, Janet Mira, looked at the New Town proposal and decided that it would be a self-sufficient community able to pay its own way," said Rieser. "Basically the land is marginal as farm land," said Rieser. "There would be more revenue for the county and it would provide badly needed housing."

Last Presley Special

By LINDA DEUTSCH

Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was the last June of Elvis Presley's life, and as he walked on stage before adoring concert audiences, TV cameras were rolling.

He was performing extremely well, remembers producer Gary Smith. "...He was singing the spirituals with so much more conviction than he was any other kind of music. I wonder now in retrospect whether he had some sense of perception about it."

The TV special based on those last concerts, produced by Smith and partner Dwight Hemion, will be broadcast Oct. 3 on Channels 5 and 10, giving fans a last look at the rock 'n' roll king before he died Aug. 16.

Essentially, says Smith, it will be the same show they would have done had Elvis lived.

"We may add a preface piece to the show," Smith said in a telephone interview from London, where he is now working. It would explain this is not a rerun of any earlier Elvis special. Other networks are planning such reruns.

"I certainly want people to know that this is, in fact, the last recorded bit of Elvis that anybody can see," Smith said. "It was his last concert tour approximately eight weeks before he died."

Smith said TV viewers would glimpse some poignant moments with Elvis — his moving delivery of the spiritual, "How Great Thou Art," which would be sung later at his funeral, and an impromptu rendition of the reflective song, "My Way."

"It was just like in the movies, but it was real," Smith recalls. "He just threw in 'My Way' one night, even admitting that he didn't know the lyrics and would we excuse him if he read it."

"He started to read the lyrics and then...he looked up and he just sang them. He never glanced back at the page again."

That song, in which a man sums up his life, was delivered with such emotion, Smith says, "it's almost as if one wonders whether he didn't sense it all."

The TV crew followed Elvis for two weeks. "We ended up videotaping concerts in Omaha, Neb. and Rapid City, S.D., as well as filming various aspects of the tour — his band, his people, his fans, his father, airport activity, etc."

In all, they covered five cities, also including Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Elvis' hometown of Memphis where they filmed the superstar at his mansion, Graceland. "There are documentary elements within this entertainment special," Smith said. "It includes some of the reaction of the fans which is unbelievable."

"I interviewed a girl who said, 'The first time I ever saw Elvis Presley he was kissing the polo poster child of that year.' She said, 'I wished to God that I could change places with that girl.'"

How did Elvis appear in his final weeks? "He was a bit overweight; there's no question about that," said Smith. "He was at times a bit sluggish. But he was performing extremely well...I think it would be fair to say that he did seem tired."

Smith said he and partner Hemion, who have produced TV specials for top singers including Neil Diamond, Barbra Streisand and Frank Sinatra, had less contact with Elvis than with most stars. The singer yielded production decisions to his manager, Col. Tom Parker, although "We did speak to Elvis before each concert," Smith said.

Smith, 42, who was born the same day as Elvis Presley, was in the South of France when a friend phoned to say Elvis had died.

"The reaction in France was incredible," he recalled. "Record shops had big displays in the windows. One heard music in the streets. Every newspaper had stories."

"He was a world star, no question of that," said Smith. "...He is the only man I can think of who was absolutely a star in every medium he touched — his records, films, personal appearances and television..."

"I think we will feel the presence of Elvis Presley for many many more years to come," he said. "This will not be over in a few months."

County official hits New Town concept

OAKLAND — "It is time we did more than pay lip service to redevelop the cities," Alameda County Supervisor John George said last week when attorneys delivered the closing arguments about the proposed Las Positas new town.

CC veteran controller quits post

Leshner News Bureau
MARTINEZ — Supervisors accepted the resignation of the county's veteran auditor-controller Tuesday, but pulled back when it came to appointing his successor.

Donald H. Funk, announced his resignation last week and suggested that the board appoint Assistant Auditor - Controller Donald L. Bouchet to take his place.

Supervisor Eric Hasseltine, Danville, objecting to quick board action said, "I'm concerned when county officials resign just before elections and a successor is then appointed." The position is up for election next June.

Supervisor Warren Bogges, Concord, agreed the board "shouldn't pre-empt the voters by appointing a permanent person, but we should see to the continuity of the office."

Hasseltine added that the whole department of the auditor-controller "should be looked at. There are at least two functions in that office that don't belong there."

When questioned later, Hasseltine would not identify the two functions. He did say he was concerned because the Board of Supervisors had responsibility in certain areas but no control because of the "independence" of an elected county official.

The auditor-controller, besides his official duties, is in charge of the county purchasing division and data processing. The board then withdrew to executive session to discuss Funk's successor. When supervisors returned to the chambers, Hasseltine requested that the internal operations committee review the functions of the auditor-controller's office and study whether or not a separate central services department under the control of the county administrator's office would be feasible. The board agreed to the proposal.

SR area planners named
Leshner News Bureau
MARTINEZ — Supervisor Eric Hasseltine, Danville, announced the appointment of the seven members of the newly-created San Ramon Valley Area Planning Commission Tuesday.

Hasseltine said that 52 persons had applied for the commission. Of the 52 that applied, 26 were interviewed personally by a local screening committee. Hasseltine said he accepted the final recommendations of the committee.

The appointments included, Linda Best, 146 Via Copla, Alamo; Juanita Burrow, 801 San Ramon Valley Blvd., Danville; Richard Kennett, 847 El Cerro Blvd., Danville; John Meakin, 47, St. Pierre Ct., San Ramon; John Olander, Diabolo; Nelson Wright, 246 Fairway Dr., Danville and Andrew Young, former member of the county Planning Commission, 1491 Laurenita Way, Alamo.

Tarzan okay
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Johnny Weissmuller is "feeling fine" as he continues to recover from a stroke, his agent reports.

Weissmuller, 73, famous for Olympic swimming feats and his movie portrayal of the fictional jungle king Tarzan, has been taken off a respirator unit at Valley Presbyterian Hospital in suburban Van Nuys, the agent, John Fisher, said Monday.

"His daughter told me that he was up this morning and he's just feeling fine," Fisher said.

Weissmuller, who won five gold medals in the 1924 and 1928 Olympics and set 67 world records before going into the movies in 1931, was hospitalized Aug. 27.

pervisor John George said last week when attorneys delivered the closing arguments about the proposed Las Positas new town.

In George's view, the proposed development in the Las Positas Valley would take jobs and human resources out of the core cities.

Tomorrow, George will have another chance to repeat that speech when he and Oakland Mayor Lionel Wilson participate in a public workshop at Laney College about the state's proposed "urban strategy."

It will be the only Alameda County workshop on the proposed plan.

George wants the urban strategy, now contained in a proposal from the State Office of Planning and Research, adopted by Governor Brown as much as he wants the Las Positas plan defeated. And for the same reasons, he says.

The top priorities of the urban strategy are 1) keep all the current housing stock possible; 2) in new development, fill in the vacant areas of existing cities; and 3) allow new development beyond city limits only adjacent to the cities, not far beyond them.

George sees Las Positas as draining jobs and resources from Oakland; the urban strategy would reverse that kind of suburban flight, said George.

"In recent years, 80 per cent of new private homes have been built in the suburbs while Oakland has become more and more specialized in functions which require professional, technical and clerical workers," said George.

"Those groups so skilled have chosen to live outside the city. Incomes earned in the city as well as other financial and intellectual resources have been 'exported' out of Oakland."

The inner city essentially has paid the price for peripheral 'community building'. It is time to try to reverse this one way transfer of resources and look at how we can revitalize and recycle our inner cities," said George.

The conference at the 10th Street campus of Laney tomorrow is a "good step in the right direction," said George. "We should campaign at the community level for an urban strategy like this."

Public school

The opportunity for education is one of the great triumphs of these United States of America. It is also one of the most abused elements within our social structure.

Public schools spend well over half of the property tax dollar. Education is the biggest single industry in most communities, with a bigger payroll, more employees, a higher annual budget than any other entity, public or private.

The education of our children is the most sensitive of all of society's roles. The classroom and the classroom teacher are exposed to public scrutiny as are no other functions, no other employees, public or private.

Is it any wonder then that so many people "find fault" with public education? It is not that the schools are fraught with more deficiencies; it is rather that we are made more aware of those shortcomings, and their cost.

We must also be aware of the benefits ... the over 70 percent of our children who go on to higher education, the ability of Americans to write and to read and to reason and to produce that is matched in numbers by no other nation in the world.

Education is still the bedrock of our freedom. The foundation upon which all other rights and benefits are established. And the strength of education is the public school, within each community, every neighborhood. It is here the system will thrive, or it will perish.

We should keep that in mind, as classrooms throughout our own community open to a new year of public scrutiny, and of great triumph.

Stark' lobby

Rep. Fortney Stark lectures his constituents with the question "Do corporate lobbyists run America?" In careful detail set forth in his "Newsletter" Stark raps such sources of lobbying loot as the American Trial Lawyers Association, AT&T and even the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

All of which will draw little criticism from the voters, who are tired of "big business influence" in the affairs of our government.

But we are just as tired of the powerful trade union lobby, the extent to which labor can and will go to influence those elected to represent all of the people. Perhaps our Congressman is not aware that the California Teachers Association, as one for instance, is listed as the biggest spender of all registered lobby groups in this state. The State Employees Association is not far behind.

We suspect it is much the same in Washington. Employee groups are well organized; they make that organization felt, often and well, in the enactment, or the shelving, of new law.

Finally, we would have hoped that Rep. Stark might have found space to chide that most powerful of all lobbying groups in Washington ... the United States Congress. There is one vested interest which no one can touch ... not the president, not the U.S. Supreme Court, not even the people.

We had recent evidence of the Congressional lobby when those employees of the people voted themselves handsome pay increases, built themselves expensive new quarters including private shower stalls in the offices, and so forth.

Yes, special interest lobbying is a serious matter in this democracy. The problem is in finding some neutral source to tell the people just who is lobbying for what.

Here's LAVWMA!

On Thursday evening of this week something called the "Livermore - Amador Valley Water Management Agency" will meet to resolve issues that will set the course and the standard for this basin throughout the next quarter century, or more.

Yet, few members of the public will be in attendance at that momentous Thursday session. Certainly there will be no one present to talk of our cultural balance, our economic stability, even our lifestyle.

Oh yes, there will be those to criticize poor old LAVWMA; but these will be essentially people who don't like the "LAVWMA Pipeline," and who prefer instead to throw us back into the sewer while "they" rehash a lot of fuzzy engineering ideas.

Whatever the approach, or the source, it is a fact that we are a society which today is motivated by waste disposal. The more junk we create, the more frustration thrown in the path of our advance. And the more meetings, the costly studies, more costly delays.

It has been going on ever since the first "civilized man" settled on these grounds, bringing with him the first out house, the first garbage can. We have advanced on many counts over those 100 years; we have not gotten very far in effective disposal of our wastes.

LAVWMA hopes soon to change all that. The consortium which draws together the cities of Livermore and Pleasanton and the VCSD has moved forward — after lo' these many years — toward a great pipeline that would connect us to an even greater pipeline, and thence to the Bay. That is an answer that should serve us for 25 years, perhaps longer.

Of a more lasting service, there will be action this Thursday that looks to recapture and reclamation of our waste waters. There is perhaps the technology, although still not the funding, to make such reclamation possible. LAVWMA will take that first step on Thursday. The results, five or ten years down the line, could be dramatic.

An important session. A big day. But does anyone really know what a LAVWMA is?

es spiraling of land prices and property taxes.

The Palo Alto based company however is just a latecomer among the huge financial organizations which have been investing in agricultural land within the state for more than a decade.

While some have been syndicates, formed to provide tax shelters for investors taking advantage of favorable tax write-off laws, other speculators have been staid financial institutions interested in long range investments.

Insurance companies have been leaders in this latter type of speculation. They have found California land ideal for "banking" surpluses. Such companies are able to look ahead 100 years, something the average investor or farm operator would find impossible. Their method is to purchase land and lease it to successful farm operators. In some cases they ask nothing but payment of taxes and maintenance of the property. Their earnings on the land will come a century from now when they sell.

But, as Thurman and other critics point out, neither type of investor has any real interest in farming for profit. Because of that they pay inflated prices for the land and, if they operate their holdings themselves, they overplant and depress the market for farm products.

Whether the Legislature can constitutionally bar such speculation is problematical. But the problem is not confined to California. Neither is it limited to the nation. Land speculation has become a world wide phenomena with giant corporations going into foreign lands. Ireland, for example, due to the invasion of West German industrialist land speculators, has experienced rises in property values incongruous to its depressed economy and low wages.

Congress, aware of the impact on the economy of such land speculations, has taken some of the steam out of it by tightening up on farm tax shelter investments and is looking towards other controls.

Whether the landgrabbers are a long range threat to food supply as charged, it is clear that absentee ownership and land speculation has caused unprecedented rises in real estate values. And it isn't just farmlands. Widespread speculation in residential properties has skyrocketed the home market and, in the view of some local governments, threatens the very fibre of communities.

Reacting to the trend the city of Davis recently enacted a constitutionally questionable ordinance to require a prospective home buyer to file a declaration of intent to reside in the property for at least one year.

Sour investments

Should government come to the rescue of property owners whose investments have soured?

That was the question asked by Alameda County Supervisor Fred Cooper the other day when a group of bondholders and landowners with interests on the Pleasanton Ridge explained their plight to the supervisors.

The county supervisors were and are thinking about giving up county ownership of the Santos Ranch Road, which is so steep it is considered dangerous. If the county abandons the road, the responsibility for maintaining the road would revert to the private property owners. Not only would that be expensive, but the landowners also would find much bigger restrictions on their ability to develop the land because of the absence of a county road. So they would get hit two ways financially.

When the landowners and bondholders complained about it to the supervisors, Cooper compared them to stockholders at North American Rockwell. Stockholders in that firm were licking their chops over the prospect of high profits from the manufacture of the B-1 bomber. But President Carter killed production of the B-1. Does that mean the federal government now should send money to all North American Rockwell stockholders, asked Cooper. No, it shouldn't; they took a risk and lost, said the supervisor. And, by analogy, the county should not keep the road just to help out the ridgeland property owners. They took a risk when buying the property or invested in the bonds which brought in the road and some water lines from Pleasanton, he said.

Cooper seemed to miss the same point, though, in the afternoon session of the supervisors' meeting when the Las Positas new town was the topic. One of the arguments for allowing the new town on 4,000 acres in the Las Positas Valley is that it would get farmers and ranchers out there off the hook from their relatively high taxes. It sounds like the B-1 bomber story again, though Cooper, a Las Positas new town supporter, didn't mention it this time.

Of course, government is always rescuing someone, whether it's Lockheed, or the firm that used to run the Job Corps in Dublin, or whoever is on welfare, Big Welfare, that is. But with a little sanity, maybe the state government could change the assessor's practices so that assessments are made, not on the "highest and best" value, but on the real value right now.

Alameda County supervisors, including Cooper, have asked the county lobbyist in Sacramento to lobby for such a law. So far no one has sponsored such a bill. I imagine that what stops it is its rationality.

Round the town

Richard Nixon says if it hadn't been for Martha Mitchell, those White House tapes would have been destroyed and there would never have been all that incriminating evidence to depose our president and send most of his first team to the pokey.

"John Mitchell would have destroyed all those tapes long before that Watergate flap ... if only he hadn't been so preoccupied with Martha," Nixon, now advises us.

That is a startling piece of information, but one which every beleaguered husband can understand. Just to refresh your memory, we take you back in time ... back to those happy days in the early 1970's ... when Richard Milhous Nixon presided over the United States of America, and all was well with the world. Well, almost.

"This silly flap over the break-in at Watergate is getting out of hand," Nixon advises his chief of staff, H.R. Haldeman. "I think we should prepare against the possibility that this little scandal might spread to the White House."

"I agree, sir," Haldeman says. "You will recall having named your attorney general as Chief Destructor of Incriminating Tapes. I will contact him on this immediately, sir."

Haldeman then places a call to the attorney general at his home. After several moments, he turns in frustration to the president.

"I've been trying to get through to the attorney general, Mr. President, but his line is always busy. I think it's Martha tying up the line, again."

"Damn that woman!" the president says. "Every time I try to get through to the Attorney General of the United States his line is tied up by that talkative wife of his. I wish she would shut up."

"Well," Haldeman replies. "We all know that Martha has her problems, and she seems to take satisfaction in talking them out with people ... particularly on the telephone. It's been quite a burden for John Mitchell lately."

The scene shifts to later that same day. The president has had private talks with two Arabian leaders over the prospects of doubling their export of oil at half the price; he has met secretly with a representative from Israel who believes that nation is on the brink of abandoning all of its arms in favor of a century of peace; and George Meany stopped by for preliminary talks about a labor proposal that would guarantee no strikes anywhere for the next fifty years.

"This has been a pretty good day," the president says, taking "his clothes and gazing up at Haldeman from the lotus position. "But still, I can't seem to shake this uneasy feeling I have that things are not going well for the Nixon administration."

"Put your mind at ease, sir," Haldeman advises his boss. "A president who is on the brink of doubling oil imports at half the price, who has the Israelis pledged to peace and American labor unions pledged to no strikes, is bound to go down in history as one of the world's most beloved leaders."

"I know all that," Nixon says. "But something about that silly Watergate business keeps bugging me. Did John Mitchell destroy all White House tapes of an incriminating nature as I asked him?"

"I haven't been able to get through to Mr. Mitchell," Haldeman replies. "His phone is always busy. However I did dispatch a special messenger to the Mitchell residence advising the attorney general that you wished to have him call immediately. That could be his now," Haldeman says in response to the quiet buzz of the president's phone.

"Hello," Haldeman says. "Yes, Mr. Mitchell, the president has been anxious to talk to you. I'll put him right on."

"Is that you John?" Nixon says. "I've been wanting to talk with you on a number of important matters of state, and also about destroying those White House tapes ... What's that? You only called to tell me you can't come to work today because Martha isn't feeling well? Dammit, John you're already over your allotted sick leave for this quarter and I need your wise counsel on several matters concerning oil, the Israelis and labor. Then there are those White House tapes ... Well, alright, but don't be too long about it."

The president hangs up, obviously disturbed.

"He had to get off the phone," Nixon says. "Martha is on one of her crying jags and insists she have the phone right away, or else she would lean out the window and start screaming again. Dammit," Nixon adds, "the president can't even confer with his attorney general over important affairs of state because of one woman who insists on talking on the phone all the time."

"Fear not," Haldeman says, wisely. "The American people are not going to condemn a leader of your stature just because Martha Mitchell wouldn't get off the line."

"I wish I could believe that," Nixon says.

Big farms

Speculation in California real estate, something which dates back to the Gold Rush and has continued throughout the state's history, has currently reached the point of provoking angry reactions. This because the land is now being bought up by giant corporations.

Center of attention at the moment are the efforts of Western Farmlands, a multi million dollar operation intent on buying up farmlands statewide. Its overt entry into the market has sparked protests in the Legislature defined in a resolution by Assemblyman John Thurman, a Modesto farmer. It calls upon the state's Corporation Commissioner to bar the California corporation from doing business in the state.

Thurman sees Western Farmlands plan as leading to a decrease in the number of farms, a decrease in the level of family farming, and a long range decrease in the level of competition.

He also said such land speculation has an adverse affect on the agricultural industry and caus-

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: At the class reunion recently, I met my old college flame. (Incidentally, husbands and wives are not invited to these affairs.) Needless to say the evening resulted in a renewal of the old affection and the gentleman and I spent the weekend together; we had never been intimate while in school. Neither of us is young — we both have teenage children and are happy in our marriages. I can't explain what happened and I certainly don't want it to happen again. Since I have never cheated on my husband, you can imagine the guilt I am experiencing. Should I confess my indiscretion to my husband? — J.U.

Dear J.U.: Now's the time to be discreet about your indiscretion. You're not going to solve anything or really save your conscience — by admitting your brief fall from grace. Reunions are usually heady affairs — seeing old friends, recalling good times and casually flirting with old beaux. You, unfortunately, were carried away by the mood of the occasion — a first relapse as you claim. While it is not to be condoned, it can be excused. If you persist in confessing to your husband you will not only create doubts in his mind which could recur to torment you, but you could be allowing yourself tacit acceptance of the fact that you have gotten away once and possibly could again. Suffer awhile in silence. You'll survive and, more importantly, so will your marriage.

And perhaps you'd better skip the next reunion. DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I am undergoing a switch on the classic problem of stepparents. Three years ago I married for the first time. My husband had a daughter who lived with him at the time and has since lived with us. Unlike the storybook tales, my stepdaughter, who is now 12, and I became great friends, even confidantes. Unfortunately, her relationship with her father has slowly eroded. They are constantly bickering and he has begun to turn on me — accusing me of stealing his daughter's affection. That is not the case; I've only tried to supply the womanly companionship I felt the child needed in the absence of her mother. I don't know what to do. — M.K.

DEAR M.K.: It's not always the stepmother or stepfather who is the evil one in the story. Sometimes the stepchild has her own devious designs that bring about unrest in the home. It's just possible you have been duped by this child. You don't mention whether her natural mother is still alive or what their relationship was. However, I strongly suspect that the young lady is using you as a means of getting back at her father for destroying the stability she knew in the former family set-up.

If the natural mother is still around, this might be an ideal time to send her daughter to her, for two reasons. First, it would give everyone a chance to observe her behavior and recognize what her true feelings are. Second, it would give you and your husband an opportunity to share that privacy which you obviously have lacked since your marriage. Maybe some other relative would take the child if only for a weekend.

"Do you have one for a friend who's having his tax return audited?"

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a problem with my complexion but I am not an adolescent. I'm 28 and have three children.

The problem started about nine months ago after I had my third child. My husband had a vasectomy then. Until my pregnancy I had taken birth control pills.

My own doctor diagnosed it as acne and prescribed an antibiotic. After the pills ran out the problem resumed. I have two refills left but the cost is high. My face also itches.

I have a friend in the same boat. Her difficulty started also after her husband's vasectomy and the end of her birth control pills.

DEAR READER — Does a husband's vasectomy cause a wife to have acne? Yes. Well, indirectly.

Acne in women is related to the balance between the two female hormones, estrogen and progesterone. Women who have a little more estrogen are less likely to have acne. Your birth control pills contained enough estrogen to help prevent the acne. After your husband's vasectomy when you no longer needed the birth control pills your estrogen levels were lower and acne cropped out.

Some antibiotics help prevent acne because they eliminate small bacteria within the skin pore that acts on the fatty sebum to make it irritating to the skin.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Our daughter who is middle-aged has the habit of flipping the nipple of her breast between her thumb and forefinger. Sometimes one, then the other. She does this whether she is dressed or in her lounging clothes.

She has normal sized breasts, perhaps a little smaller than usual.

Her father says she gets some sex reaction. I've checked the books and magazine articles she reads and the material is never sexy material. She does this when she reads, also other times too.

Is this apt to cause cancer of the breast? Will it cause the breasts to increase in size? Is it dangerous? She is the mother of two grown children.

DEAR READER — Your letter proves that a woman may have grown children of her own but she is still her parents' "little girl," which has its good and not so good points.

Her habit will not cause cancer. Physical injury to the breast is not a cause of breast cancer at all. It is not likely to enlarge the breast either. If it did I would guess from a number of letters I receive that a large number of women would be doing the same thing. And there is no reason to think it will cause her any harm in any way — other than any social embarrassment she might feel if she does it in public and it is noticed or she suddenly realizes she is doing it.

The nipples do respond to sexual stimulation and they are one of the erogenous zones.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHAT IS A MONGOOSE?"

A. MONGOOSE ARE FIERCE, WEASELLIKE ANIMALS FAMOUS AS SNAKE KILLERS, ESPECIALLY OF COBRAS.

Mongoose are active little animals that live in India, Africa and some other countries. A mongoose looks a great deal like a weasel.

The common mongoose has a pointed face, a long, tapering tail and yellowish-gray fur. It is a little larger than a house cat.

Mongoose are famous as snake killers, especially of cobras.

In the story "Rikki-tikki-tavi" Rudyard Kipling tells about the little mongoose that kills a king cobra, one of the most poisonous snakes in the world.

The mongoose is not immune to the cobra's poison. It simply takes care not to be bitten by dodging the cobra's deadly fangs with its lightninglike speed.

Snakes are not the only animals a mongoose kills for food. It also catches rats, mice and many other small animals.

Mongoose are easily tamed. People in India often keep a pet mongoose around home to drive snakes and rodents away.

One of the difficulties in writing a book for students is that the author must try to find interesting hands and interesting hands present interesting difficulties.
Paul Cromelin uses today's hand to show the raise from one to six notrump. North has a balanced 17 points. If South has a minimum 16, the combined total is 33. If South has a maximum 18, the total is 35. Either way the hands belong in six.

Six is a mighty good contract. If clubs break 3-2 there are no problems. If they break 4-1, a 3-3 diamond break will produce the 12th trick. If neither clubs or diamonds break, declarer can develop a squeeze if the same opponent must try to protect both suits.

The play is simple indeed provided that declarer starts proceedings with an unusual play. He must give away a club immediately.

The late Walter Syman dubbed this play the submarine squeeze. Once the club is ducked, and we wonder just what percentage of players won't just lay down the ace and king, declarer just falls into the squeeze by cashing all high spades, hearts and clubs. On the last spade or heart East must chuck a diamond to keep his high club and the hand is over.

Arson strikes again

A Concord subdivision, under construction, has been hit with its fourth arson blaze in the last month and one half.

The latest fire was Sunday about 5 p.m. when flames swept through six homes under construction at the Crossings, just off Ygnacio Valley Road and Cowell Road.

Estimated damage in the latest blaze was $350,000. The fire was reported after smoke began pouring out of structures at N. Weeping Spruce Court and N. Marsh Elder Court in the subdivision.

On Aug. 22 another home under construction was damaged to the tune of $30,000 in a blaze that was determined as having been set. Earlier that month two separate fires that were discovered early caused an estimated $25 and $300 damages.

At this point in time Consolidated Fire District Inspector Roy Bell says that officials feel the two earlier blazes were probably the result of children playing with matches within the tract.

He also indicated that at this time the district is studying the Aug. 22 blaze and Sunday's fires as separate entities until evidence leads them to believe otherwise. However, both are believed to have been set fires.

The homes burned in the latest fire would have sold at $80,000 to $90,000 each, it was noted. Some 45 firefighters and 14 engines battled the fire for more than one hour. One fireman suffered minor injuries in a fall from a ladder.

Reports indicate that since the fires extra guards have been posted at the subdivision and the construction area has been blocked off from the rest of the homes.

SF schools

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — About 60,000 San Francisco public school children will miss school for at least five days — and perhaps longer — until a logjam in contract talks with the city's teachers is resolved.

School Supt. Robert Alioto told a Monday news conference that a scheduled Sept. 7 opening would be postponed until Sept. 12. He said if no agreement is reached by then, the opening would be put off another week.

Alioto said the city's 4,000 teachers "have taken the position of 'no contract, no work.'" He said the delay "will allow us to continue negotiations without an atmosphere of crisis."

Contract talks broke down over the issues of wage hikes, teacher evaluations by the district, transfer policies and work hours, Alioto said.

Asked what he would do if negotiations with teachers dragged on past the Sept. 19 deadline, Alioto replied, "I would like to open without them, but we'll probably delay opening rather than jeopardize students."

Dav Clisnam, staff representative for the San Francisco Federation For Teachers, said he was shocked by Alioto's announcement.

New SRV water source accepted

Few San Ramon residents noticed a difference in the taste of their drinking water as the East Bay Municipal Utility District began pumping Delta water from Middle River into the system.

In telephone responses from 30 San Ramon residents surveyed yesterday, four residents said they had noticed a different taste or color to their drinking water since Monday.

Middle River water began entering the district's San Pablo Reservoir Sept. 1 and blending with the rest of the supply began Sunday night.

The system's usual supply, the Mokelumne River, has a salt content below 10 parts per million and less than 180 ppm of dissolved solids.

Middle River's salt is reported to be about 180 ppm with a dissolved solids level around 400 ppm.

Public health standards allow a maximum salt content of 250 ppm but EBMUD said its water would continually be blended with other water to keep the salt level down.

None of the four respondents said their water tasted particularly salty or chlorinated but each had noticed a change of some sort. Their comments ranged from, "It's not as clean and fresh," to "It looks a little more cloudy."

However another respondent said she noticed no difference and added, "I've been drinking a lot. I'm on a diet and have to drink 8 to 10 glasses a day."

Two people who noticed a different taste said was most pronounced in the morning coffee; one lady claiming sediment had foamed to the top when she boiled the water and it had a greyish color.

EBMUD officials said the new water was being treated with activated carbon and chlorine to control any odor and taste problems but the new mixture would never exceed 50 per cent of the system's total supply.

TO THESE SHORES CAME THE BEST

Along with Cultures, Skills and Strengths came Tastes -- and Recipes

It has been said that when the doors of America were opened to the waves of people who make this a nation of immigrants everybody came with the same uncertainty, fear and hope.

But, thank goodness, not with the same recipes.

In 1914, the last and biggest year of open immigration, 1,218,480 newcomers arrived from Europe. They came from Ireland, Germany, Scandinavia, France, Italy and from Russia and the other Eastern European nations.

They were people who were willing to face the unknown and to sever old ties. But they were not ready to totally abandon their roots, particularly when it came to the most basic business of all — eating.

It cannot be assumed that most (or even a barest minority) of them had ever been exposed to the aphorisms of Brillat-Savarin. Without voicing it, however, they shared at least one part of his philosophy of gastronomy. The good professor wrote in 1825, "The pleasures of the table are for every man, of every land, and no matter of what place in history or society; they can be a part of all his other pleasures, and they last the longest, to console him when he has outlived the rest."

So, let's start at the beginning. Of a party or a meal, that is. All of Europe has given us herring recipes, but the Northern water people are credited with making other Americans love the idea of "snitter." Whether they are called that, or canapés or appetizers, these smaller variations of the hearty open-faced Scandinavian lunch or dinner sandwiches are, traditionally, herring-based.

From that base, they take off in many directions. A piece of herring in wine sauce or sour cream or tomato sauce placed over hard-boiled egg. A herring salad mixture filling a mushroom cap. Herring with apple slices, beets, different cheeses, cucumbers, tomatoes or pickle slices — on a triangle of toast, a sliver of pumpernickel or a round of party rye. They are great with beer, equally at home with tea, a welcome snack with coffee.

The people who came from the Southern seas of Europe brought many recipes. Saltimbocca was and is one of the best, and not only because of its colorful translation. Saltimbocca, literally, means "jump in the mouth." Lucky is the mouth it jumps into, especially when the dish is seasoned with a hundred and fifty-year old blend of herbs and spices. Angostura aromatic bitters is another "immigrant" that Americans of all cultural backgrounds can be happy about. Even today it comes into this country from Trinidad, every drop of it, to flavor and season in a unique way. When it wants to be, Angostura is exotic, sometimes it's subtle, always it's a worthwhile addition in recipes that call for its use.

Even a sampling of French recipes would never be enough, so pick out one classic to round out a meal of veal that began with herring. A vegetable of course, and what, then, but Ratatouille? This vegetable stew (which borrows from the Spanish to make the melting pot even more complete) is a well-seasoned accompaniment that complements any main dish and compliments the French-Americans who can claim this idea as part of their heritage.

For dessert, a tall Bavarian Rice Mold that is reminiscent of a snow-capped Alp. Like snow, the creamy mixture will melt in anybody's mouth and bring back memories that today's second, third or fourth-generation Austrian-Americans never knew they had. The American part of them will welcome the addition of the blueberries, every American's favorite berry. After all, the blueberry was here to greet the first immigrants. The Indians helped the Pilgrims through their first winter with dried blueberries.

And that's what the best of American cooking is. A forthright blend of ideas from many people and many places. Just like each of us. Let's try to keep it all good.

SOME "SNITTER" SUGGESTIONS

Start by collecting a number of the varieties of jarred herring that are available in the dairy or deli departments of the markets. Each of them is different from the other and has a unique contribution to make. There's herring in sour cream, herring in wine sauce, herring in a zesty tomato sauce, in plain vinegar and onions, or rolled around a pickle to make a "rollmop." The latter idea was brought to these shores by newcomers from Germany.

Using firm bread, either white, rye or pumpernickel, cut out small shapes. These can be triangles, circles, ovals or even bells and stars. The thing to aim at is "one mouthful." Spread the bread pieces very thinly with butter. In Scandinavia, sweet butter is preferred; here many people use margarine.

In "laying" the sandwiches it is fun to strive both for attractive appearance and good flavor mixes. A little imagination can transform the tomatoes, celery, eggs and other everyday things now reposing in the refrigerator to look like miniature jewels presented by a caterer. Try some of these combinations:

- ... sliced Swiss cheese topped with a piece of luncheon herring and a touch of pimiento
- ... a cucumber slice topped with a wine-pickled tidbit of herring and a thin lemon slice
- ... a couple of slices of pickled beets topped with a strip of herring in cream sauce
- ... a slice or two from a herring rollmop, on a piece of pumpernickel and sprinkled with hard-cooked egg or a thin slice of sweet onion

- ... thin apple slices topped with either a piece of herring in cream sauce or a boned strip of luncheon herring
- ... jarred herring salad spread on the bread and decorated with canned asparagus tips
- ... celery slices first, then a layer of herring in sour cream, then a sprig of dill
- ... thinly sliced tomatoes topped with herring in wine sauce or herring in tomato sauce
- ... halved hard-cooked eggs, with a strip of any of the herring varieties placed on top, and garnished with pimiento, apple bit or carrot curl
- ... mushroom caps stuffed with herring salad and garnished with a slice of pickled beet and a couple of capers

SALTIMBOCCA ANGOSTURA

- 6 veal scallopini slices (about 1-1/2 lbs.)
- Salt and pepper
- Flour
- 6 thin slices smoked ham or prosciutto, the same size as the veal scallopini
- 1/4 cup each olive oil and butter OR margarine
- 1 teaspoon Angostura aromatic bitters
- 3/4 cup Marsala wine
- 1/2 teaspoon crumbled sage

Sprinkle veal on all sides with salt and pepper. Dip slices in flour coating them completely. Place ham slices on top of floured veal slices and fasten in place with toothpicks. Heat oil and butter in a large skillet and fry slices quickly until richly browned on both sides. Remove slices to a platter and keep warm. To drippings in skillet, add remaining ingredients and stir over high heat until sauce bubbles, scraping pan to loosen all brown particles. Spoon pan juices over veal and ham. Serve sprinkled with finely-chopped parsley. Yield: 6 servings.

RATATOUILLE PORT-OF-SPAIN

- 1/4 cup olive oil
- 1 clove garlic, chopped
- 3 green peppers, seeded and cut into thin strips
- 1 large eggplant, trimmed and diced
- 3 zucchini, cut into 1/2-in. thick slices
- 1 large onion, sliced
- 1/2 cup chopped parsley
- 1 teaspoon Angostura aromatic bitters
- Salt and pepper
- 1/3 cup grated Parmesan cheese

In a large skillet or Dutch oven, heat olive oil and saute garlic until golden. Add remaining ingredients except cheese and cook stirring occasionally until vegetables are tender but still crisp, about 20 to 25 minutes. Correct seasoning to taste with additional salt and pepper. Sprinkle top with cheese and place under broiler until lightly browned. Yield: 6 servings.

BAVARIAN BLUEBERRY MOLD

- 2/3 cup long grain (not converted) rice
- 3 cups milk
- 1/3 cup sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
- 1 cup (1/2 pt.) heavy cream, whipped
- 1 cup mixed candied fruit
- 1 cup fresh or frozen blueberries
- 1 pkg. instant vanilla pudding
- 3 cups milk
- Additional blueberries

In a saucepan, combine rice, 2-1/2 cups of the milk, sugar and salt. Cover and cook stirring occasionally until rice is tender and liquid absorbed. Cool and stir in vanilla. Mix gelatin and remaining milk and stir over low heat until gelatin is dissolved. Stir gelatin into rice mixture. Fold in whipped cream, fruit and blueberries. Pour into mold and chill until firm. Unmold and serve topped with vanilla sauce made by mixing pudding mix and milk until thick. Surround mold with additional blueberries. Yield: 1/2 quart mold.

Help for aged crime victims

[illegible]

At age 65, Dr. Glenn Seaborg, the Nobel Laureate who co-discovered plutonium, remains a busy researcher, teacher and speaker. He resides in Lafayette with his wife, Helen.

There is an energy crisis, says Nobel Laureate

tists in developing the atom bomb and said he signed a pact in June, 1945, which asked President Harry Truman to test the bomb on an unpopulated area to demonstrate its power.

"But our suggestion was not accepted," Seaborg recalled. "The world would have been better off, I suspect, without the atom bomb, but now we must work for international control of nuclear weapons.

"Getting all countries to sign the non-proliferation treaty is damned important in this age when war is so unthinkable."

Seaborg noted that even though many countries have nuclear power plants — and the capability of making atom bombs — none have used plutonium for weapons.

Plutonium can only be produced in a research reactor or as a by-product of a power plant.

"India's bomb was made with enriched U-235 using a Canadian research reactor," Seaborg said. "That was possible because nuclear agreements were not tight enough."

• MISSING URANIUM: You've been quoted as saying that uranium could have been missing during the 1960s. Any change in that position?

"There has always been a problem in monitoring nuclear fuel production because of the mechanics of the production process," Seaborg said, adding that a certain amount of loss of uranium during the enrichment process is always experienced."

Referring to the month-old report of missing fuel from a Hanford, Conn., processing plant, Seaborg said the uranium unaccounted for was probably due to administrative error.

"To hijack enough material for a bomb, you would have to spend an entire day working your way through locks," he said. "The material is guarded better than Brinks. There are always reports about uranium going to Israel. I can't imagine what Israel is doing with all that uranium."

"Why, they don't even have the capability to store the 100 tons of nuclear material that is supposed to be there."

Glenn Seaborg's list of credits are many Glenn T. Seaborg was born April 19, 1912, in the iron mining city of Ishpeming, Mich., the son of a machinist.

His accomplishments fill 10 inches of double-column print in the Encyclopedia Britannica and eight inches of squinty-sized print in the 1976 edition of Who's Who.

Here is a partial biography:

— He received an A.B. degree in chemistry from the University of California at Los Angeles in 1934 and was awarded a Ph.D. in chemistry from the University of California at Berkeley in 1937.

— In 1940-41, Seaborg co-discovered plutonium and the first 10 heavier-than-uranium elements on the periodic chemical chart.

— During World War II he headed a research group that resulted in a chemical process for making plutonium in the super-secret Manhattan Project, which resulted in the first atom bomb.

— In 1951 he was awarded the Nobel Prize for chemistry with E.M. McMillan for work with transuranium elements.

— He served as chancellor of the Berkeley campus from 1958 to 1961.

— Appointed by President John F. Kennedy, he served as chairman of the now-defunct Atomic Energy Commission from 1961 to 1971.

— Since 1971 he has worked as assistant director of the Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory, teaches chemistry in Berkeley and has helped write the 20-year master plan for East Bay Regional Park District.

He lives in Lafayette with his wife, Helen. The Seaborgs have six children, most of whom are interested in biological sciences and conservation.

Dove hunters make good

In the Bag

Jim Lewis and several friends were among the early dove hunters from the valley. They made their annual trip to the Wesley area and found the hunting very good.

"I should have gotten a limit in the first fifteen minutes," says Jim, "but I just couldn't get it all together. By early afternoon, though, I scratched out a limit."

They enjoyed a cook-out over a campfire. Jim says the trip was relaxing and recommends it to anyone who likes the outdoors.

Craig Hachmann was another valley hunter who was eager to dove season to start. But he reports the Los Banos area was a poor choice this time. He plans to look around for a local spot to hunt, instead of making a long drive with possible poor results. Good luck, Craig.

Members of the Livermore-Pleasanton Rod and Gun Club, and other local sportsmen, did not have far to go over the Labor Day weekend, as they attended a three-day competition shoot at the local club.

Things started off a bit slow on Saturday for the 500 Marathon Doubles. But shooters kept coming and eventually more than 10 squads signed in. Following are the names and scores of the top finishers:

First 100 targets: Class AA, Dan Bonillas, 97; Class A, Dave Bonillas, 96; Class B, Richard DeCarli, 94; Class C, Aubrey Robertson, 93; Ladies, Alice Cascio, 82.

Second 100 targets: Class AA, Steve Williamson, 97; Class A, Dan Henderson, 95; Class B, Gary Peterson, 97; Class C, Herb Elmore, 92; Ladies, Augusts Yappelli, 87.

Third 100 targets: Class AA, George Reppas, 97; Class A, Michael Indrieri, 94; Class B, Michael Mann, 95; Class C, Charles Boarts, 74; Class D, Joann Boarts, 74.

Fourth 100 Targets: Class AA, Joe Stella, 96; Class A, Tommie Lee, 97; Class B, Lowell Turner, 96; Class C, Don Maniz, 93.

Fifth 100 targets: Class AA, John Tirri, 95; Class A, Al Yappelli, 95; Class B, Tad Anthonian, 92; Class C, Gene Scott, 91; Class D, Sid Roberts, 83.

You may be wondering about the different classes in "D"; but it takes three shooters to fill a class. No trophy for fewer than three shooters. The above applies to the Ladies Class, Junior, Sub Junior and Veteran.

The high overall was that powerful shooter, Dan Bonillas, with a score of 492 out of a possible 500. Great shooting, Dan.

Sunday's competition included the 16-yards and Handicap Events, with the following results:

Ladies, 16 yards: Gussie Yappelli, 94; Runner-up, Gennie Stella, 94; Handicap, Karen Wong, 93; runner-up, Gussie Yappelli, 92.

Veteran, 16 yards: Alan Wiel, 97; Handicap, Dick Kaiser, 88.

Junior, 16 yards: Rick Herrick, 91; Handicap, Herrick, 88.

Don Knight and Ed Valin both went straight so a shoot-off had to be held. Don was the winner for the Class A 16-yard event.

On Labor Day, the Wolf Shoot was a bit different. Nothing but handicap and may the best shooter win. The winners are the following:

First 100: Winner Ron Church with a score of 98; runner-up was George Reppas with 97. George won the three-way shoot-off.

Karen Fong was the Ladies winner with 95; runner-up was Nancy Pierson with 93. Veteran winner was Oliver Daniels, score 91. Junior winner was Mike Oliver with 82.

In the second 100, Ron Church won with 98; runner-up was Donovan Andrews, 97. Ladies winner was Alice Cascio; runner-up, Gussie Yappelli, 94 and 93, respectively.

Veteran winner was Richard Kaiser, 88. Junior, Mike Oliver with 89. Ron Church was declared top shooter in both the first and second 100's.

Ernie Fries was High Overall with a 385 out of 400 for the Sunday-Monday events.

Young Steve Reppas is an outstanding shooter and he says, "I'm eight and 3/4 years old." Steve has the right stance, good follow through and lightning fast reflexes. At the 16 yards he goes from 13 to 18. Not bad.

Shirley Baumann, Margaret Otterson and Josie Staggs did a super job in the kitchen. They kept right on working in the 105-degree heat and didn't complain.

Calgary tourney

Clippers up, BV down

CALGARY, ALBERTA The Livermore Clippers' under-10 soccer team captured the Calgary Invitational Soccer Tournament mini-mites title here last weekend.

The Livermore squad downed four opponents and outscored them 29-2 in winning the championship.

Livermore opened the tournament with a 9-0 victory over Millican Ogden of Canada, as Kenny Petlansky allied two goals.

Eric Woods, Mike Foscalina, Vince Martinez, Kenny Coloma, Richie Stearns, Tony Trucks and Chris Salazar also scored for the victors.

Dave Voelker had three assists.

The Clippers downed Lake Bona Vista of Calgary, 8-1 in the second round as Darrin Lee and Foscalina scored twice each. Martinez, Woods and Voelker each added a single goal.

The champions smashed Edmonton, 8-0 in the semi-finals, as Killman Bob Killman and Woods each scored three times. Steve Duncan and Jeff O'Connor also scored for the victors.

Sunnyvale United proved to be too much in the finals, winning 4-1.

Ballistic United's under-12 team lost in the semi-finals to Thorncliffe on penalty kicks.

The two teams were tied 3-3 after regulation but the Canadian team outkicked Ballistic 3-1 in penalty kicks to win the match.

Steve Maciorski, David Irish and Mike Dueterhaus scored the Ballistic goals in regulation time.

HAYWARD — It looks like another one of those years for the Chabot College soccer team. One of those winning years.

With Granada High School graduate Shannon Estill scoring two goals, including the ice-breaker, the Gladiators pasted visiting Santa Rosa, 5-0 in 90-degree heat yesterday afternoon.

"It wasn't a good test," said Chabot coach John Shaw. "They weren't that good and we made a lot of mistakes."

Yet, with the Glads outshooting the Bearcubs, 22-11, and booting three corner kicks to Santa Rosa's three, Chabot showed a semblance of the form that annually gave them title to the state championship before the string was halted at the conference level last season.

The win came after just five days of practice and with classes still weeks away for Chabot. And, it was not without a price as five Glads suffered injuries of varying severity.

John Rodriguez injured a knee during the first half and Shaw said the knee "looked bad," though Rodriguez said the joint was "just stiff." Time will tell.

Ruben Sanchez twisted an ankle, Fernando Castro picked up a harlie horse in the thigh and Bob Artigua cut his chin and needed a few stitches to patch it up.

Jim Lennon, another ex-Granada player, hurt his groin during practice.

"I was kind of surprised," Shaw said of the injuries. "Our conditioning was excellent and we'd done a lot of stretching exercises, but we only had five days."

All Chabot's goals came up the middle as Estill's substitute at striker, Sergio Hernandez, tallied a hat trick to support Shaw's pride in the depth of this season's Glads.

Still, the squad has its drawbacks.

"We have to keep the ball on the ground because we're very small," Shaw pointed out, calling to mind previous Glad teams whose collective builds fell somewhere between the archetypical basketball and football player.

"We have a lot of work to do, especially on offside and stopping breaks down the middle," he said in reference to a pair of Santa Rosa thrusts that former Amador Valley High School goalkeeper Dave Schneider had to make outstanding saves to repel. "If Dave hadn't stopped those balls it would have been a different game."

Indeed it might have as both came with the game still scoreless. But once Estill took a 20-yard pass from Mike Kury and poked the ball into the net for a 1-0 Glad lead, it was a frustrating match for the Bearcubs.

The tie-breaker came 21 minutes into the game and was followed nine minutes later by Hernandez' first goal of the game. The Tennyson High School alumnus took a short pass from Helder Serpa and placed the ball into the lower left corner of the cage as overworked Santa Rosa keeper Mike Mason.

Three minutes before intermission, Kury slipped his second assist of the afternoon past burly Dale Soto and Hernandez scored on a ground ball that was the mirror image of his first tally, this one coming from the left side instead of the right.

By the half, Chabot had already blasted 14 shots at Mason and taken only six in return, so, after John Tjahjade's drop-off centering pass set up Estill's second goal, Shaw led a parade of 11 substitutes to the scorer's table.

They entered with 16 minutes gone in the half and, 13 minutes later, scored.

Steve Blalock, another ex-Don, heaved a long, accurate, throw-in up the left side and Hernandez dribbled a few yards, then fired a shot at Mason, who dropped low to stop the ball. Hernandez poked the rebound and Mason again slapped the ball into the air from his reverse prone position; the third time was the charm as Sergio finally punched the ball into the net.

The Glads will scrimmage the University of California Thursday, with none of the injured players taking part, before meeting Ohlone Saturday at the Pleasanton Sports Park.

Borg hurt, leaves Open

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. — "I can't play anymore."

With those simple, painful words, Bjorn Borg — the No. 1 seed, the Wimbledon champion, the top-rated male tennis player in the world — took himself out of the U.S. Open championships.

Borg, who strained his right shoulder in a practice session prior to the start of this classic, overcame the pain in beating his first three opponents in straight sets. But Tuesday, it became too much.

After one game of the third and decisive set against Dick Stockton, Borg called it quits. The final score: 3-6, 6-4, 1-0 default.

During the rest period after the first game of the final set, Borg approached Stockton.

"I can't play anymore," Borg said.

"Are you sure you can't continue?" asked Stockton.

"I'm sure," replied Borg. "I'm finished."

Does the default take the edge off Stockton's victory?

"It takes a little bit away, sure, but I'll take it any way I can get it," he replied. "I would like to have seen the match finished. I had momentum — I felt I was going to win. Now people will say he defaulted, Stockton didn't really win."

"But the only thing that matters is who's name is on the scoreboard — and today it's mine."

Stockton's next opponent will be clay-court ace Harold Solomon of Silver Spring, Md., the No. 12 seed, who upset Vitas Gerulaitis on Monday.

Meanwhile, in less eventful matches, third-seeded Brian Gottfried of Lauderhill, Fla. and Manuel Orantes of Spain also advanced to the quarter-finals.

Gottfried, 25, one of the busiest of the touring pros, struggled to get past the rising Polish star, 15th-seeded Wojtek Fibak, 6-7, 6-3, 6-4. Orantes, the 28-year-old left-hander who won this event in 1975, easily ousted 18-year-old John McEnroe of Douglaston, N.Y. 6-2, 6-3.

The top three women's seeds also won their way into the quarter-finals.

Chris Evert, gunning for her third straight title, whipped old rival Nancy Richey of San Angelo, Tex. 6-3, 6-0. Second-seeded Martina Navratilova, the Czech expatriate who now plays out of Dallas, handily beat Marise Kruger of South Africa 6-2, 6-1. And third-seeded Virginia Wade, the Wimbledon champ from Britain, defeated Mona Guerrant of Scottsdale, Ariz., 7-5, 6-4.

Tiny Tracy Austin, 14, returns ball to her opponent, Virginia Ruzici, whom she defeated in U.S. Open competition, 6-3, 7-5. For a story on the young tennis sensation, see page 15.

Sixth-seeded Rosie Casals of Sausalito, Calif. was upset by No. 12 Wendy Turnbull of Australia 4-6, 6-0, 6-0, and 10th-seeded Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia trounced Dianne Fromholtz of Australia 6-3, 6-2.

In the women's quarter-finals, Evert will take on seventh-seeded Billie Jean King; 14-year-old Tracy Austin will face fifth-seeded Betty Stove, the 6-foot Dutch woman; Ms. Wade will take on Turnbull, and Navratilova will play Jausovec.

Fil-Circle takes opener

Tud Lahti rapped a double into left-center field to score Lou Pades from second with the winning run as Fil-Circle upset Farmer's Insurance, 4-3, in the Livermore Area Recreation and Park District B1 softball playoff action last night at Max Baer Park.

Fil-Circle, which trailed 3-0 going into the bottom of the sixth inning, scored three runs in the sixth and one in the seventh to take the come-from-behind victory.

The winning rally was set up by a lead-off single by Albert Tayo, followed by another single by Pades with one out. The runners went to second and third when the ball got past the center-fielder.

The rally was almost snuffed when Jim Evaristo dribbled a grounder to second base which was bobbled slightly. Jim Villar, who reached base earlier on a fielder's choice, attempted to score but the second baseman recuperated in time to throw him out trying to go from third to home.

Lahti then rapped his two-out shot to easily score Pades with the final tally.

Farmer's Insurance came into the game as the first-place team through the regular season, but the inspired Filipinos, the fourth-place squad, will advance to the finals next week against either Round Table Pizza or Red Baron. Those two squads played in the late game last night.

The winners scored three in the sixth to tie the game after getting just three hits over the previous five innings. Singles by Evaristo, Brian Bates, an error by the leftfielder, and a two-run single by Mario Jimenez made it 3-2.

Jimenez advanced to third when his ball got by the centerfielder and later came home on Larry Nadeau's sacrifice fly to center to tie the game.

Dick Williamson was the big hitter for Farmer's, striking a lead-off homer in the second inning and a two-run shot in the fourth after a single by Pat Hallin to give the losers their early lead. Dutch Vamwey tripled and singled, John Bonham singled, Gil Cruz singled, and J. Phillip Chubb singled for the losers.

Ken Shelton doubled and singled for the winners, while Steve Evaristo and Lahti added singles.

Pair of twos for P-town

COQUITLAM, B.C. — Two Pleasanton soccer teams placed second in the Sixth Annual Bel-Air Invitational here on the Labor Day weekend.

The Ballistic United Under-14 Thunderbolt fell to powerful Westburn of British Columbia, 4-0 in the finals.

However, the local squad was impressive in earlier matches.

The Thunderbolts defeated Inter-Community 2-1 in the semi-finals. Mel Grisel and Aerick Brown scored the goals.

In the opening round the valley squad topped the Spurs 3-0. Brown, Erick Hanhy and Scott Mondle scored the winners' goals. Ron Lambert and Mike Lemmons each had assists.

Ballistic Nationals' Under-12 team dropped a 2-0 decision the host Bel-Air Celtics in the finals.

Ballistic United goalie Paul Ramos had 10 saves in a brilliant defensive performance. Nicky Mortensen and Steve Woodfill also played well for the losers.

In earlier games United toppled McSween's 5-1 and Cliff Avenue, 7-1.

Tony Lupino scored four goals for the local squad in the victory over McSween's. Jason Moratos added the other goal.

Kevin Henry had three assists and Troy Gaston one for the winners. Eric VanGitten and Rusty Witt also played well for the valley squad.

In the victory over Cliff Avenue Henry, Lupino, Moratos, Clark Morris, Tim Silva, Don Potts and Mitch Wilkinson each scored for Ballistic United.

Will Hayes and Darrell Packard stood out on defense for the winners.

Giants thump Atlanta, 12-2

ATLANTA — Willie McCovey, Darrell Evans and Gary Thomasson drove in 10 runs between them to back the five-hit pitching of Bob Knepper and lead the San Francisco Giants to a 12-2 rout of the Atlanta Braves Tuesday night.

Darrell Thomas led off the first with a single, moved to second on a wild pitch and scored the Giants' first run on McCovey's single.

Knepper, the first of 10 batters in the Giants' third, started the inning with a single. Thomas also singled and Andrews drew a walk to load the bases. Evans then doubled to left, scoring Knepper and Thomas.

That was all for Solomon. Don Collins relieved and promptly surrendered McCovey's three-run homer. It was the 488th homer of his career, and McCovey's two hits left him only one shy of the 2,000 mark.

Collins then yielded a single to Jack Clark, balked him to second and later walked Johnnie Masters before finally getting out of the inning.

Terry Whitfield, who replaced McCovey in the lineup in the fourth, led off the Giants' fifth with a single off Rick Camp. He raced to third on Clark's single and scored on Thomasson's sacrifice fly.

UOP frosh

Boulware out for the year

Former Dublin High School star fullback Jim Boulware will miss the entire 1977 season for the University of Pacific's football team as the result of some torn ligaments.

Boulware, who rushed for over 1,700 yards last season to lead the Gaels to a 6-4 record, will probably be redshirted this year. Since he is only a freshman he will have four years left.

"It's really a shame," said Dublin High mentor Wayne Re. "From what they (UOP coaches) said he was really coming along before this happened."

UOP offensive line coach Dante Scarnecchia said that Boulware was vying for a position at tailback with five or six other candidates.

"He was injured in a scrimmage last week," Scarnecchia commented. "Jim was coming along very well. In fact he made a very good run the play before he we hurt. We have a lot of running backs but he would probably have been third or fourth-string if he hadn't been hurt."

UOP, generally a run-oriented team, has one of the country's top fullback prospects in senior Bruce Gibson.

The Tigers will start the season Saturday night in Stockton against Colorado State. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

Local football teams play in scrimmages

Valley high school football teams participated in scrimmages last weekend in preparation for this week's opening non-league games.

Dublin hosted Mt. Eden and head coach Wayne Re was impressed with his team's showing.

"We didn't keep any official scoring," he said. "But I was very impressed with the showing of our offensive and defensive lines. They're ahead of where I thought they would be at this time."

Re also had praise for tailbacks Lynn Beamon and Jon Batchelor. Batchelor is a returning starter from last year and rushed for over 300 yards.

Mike Hardy has taken over the starting quarterback spot for the Gaels and Re has been pleased with his work.

"He threw a touchdown pass against Mt. Eden and ran the team well," Re said.

Tony Soares, Marty Sparlini and Jerone King stood out in the line for Dublin. Dane Seropian was a star in the defensive backfield.

"We've got a young team overall," Re remarked. "But we're coming along well. I think we did a hell of a job, particularly in the line. Mt. Eden had a lot of speed."

Amador Valley head mentor Duffy Dufour was less pleased with his team's effort against Kennedy of Fremont.

"We didn't do well on offense and seemed to lack overall intensity," he stated. "But Kennedy stunted a lot and we weren't ready for it."

Dufour did praise his defense, however.

"Our defense did a good job for the most part," he said. "Pat Inglesby was a standout at safety and Chuck Gilliam did well at cornerback."

Max Sweeney and Glenn VanWinkle stood out as offensive receivers and Rob Flores looked good as both a offensive and defensive back for the Dons.

Granada played a tough, well-balanced scrimmage with American of Fremont.

The Matadors were erratic on offense but impressive on defense.

Brad Wood, Kevin Goseny and Dean Batchelor each intercepted a pass for Granada. End Stan Paul also stood out.

The Matadors are plagued by injuries as Pat Nalty, Mike Nalty and Brad Dearman are currently out.

American moved the ball for one touchdown against the Matadors.

Foothill had the misfortune to go up against Independence High of San Jose, one of the biggest high schools west of Chicago.

The Falcons scored one touchdown and gave up four against the powerful Mt. Hamilton League club. Independence is rated fourth in the Bay Area in one prep poll.

Foothill played without running backs Sandy Edington and Tim Cordes.

Naish Piazza was the ofensive star of Livermore's scrimmage with Marina. He connected with wide receiver Terry Jacobs twice on the 'Pokes last possession.

The Cowboys scored once during the scrimmage and nearly tallied a second time. Marina also scored one touchdown.

Daryl Hanson, George Farrell and Bob Thompson were defensive stars for Livermore.

California, which went winless last season, did fairly well against a strong Sunset club. The Grizzlies scored once but had it called back. Sunset tallied three touchdowns.

Dan Nelson was the only California injury, suffering a twisted right knee. Todd Pelley, Tom Woodmansee (who also played quarterback) and Mark Loyola were excellent on defense for the Grizzlies.

Second-string quarterback Pat Dulick impressed with his passing, completing three passes in one series.

Livermore halfback Steve Culy leads quarterback Naish Piazza through the line in the Cowboys' scrimmage against Marina High.

U.S. Open a "wonderland" for 14-year-old Austin

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. — Tracy Austin, a wind-up doll in a gingham pinafore, has turned the 1977 U.S. Tennis Championships into the "Alice in Wonderland Open."

Everybody's talking about Tracy. They have lost count of Guillermo Vilas' streak of victories. They show little concern over Bjorn Borg's wounded shoulder. They could care less about Jimmy Connors' aching back.

"When does Tracy play again?" they ask.

"We Love Tracy" banners are sprouting all over the old horseshoe stadium. Tykes surround her when she leaves the court and dog her heels until she finds the sanctuary of the ladies' locker room. She has a bigger army than Arnie.

Millions, watching on TV, suddenly have been stricken with "Tracyitis."

She is tennis' modern phenomenon — a five-foot, 93-pound stick of stroking dynamite who has suddenly turned the formidable women's division into Sesame Street.

Only 14 years old, she has overpowered four older opponents, including fourth-seeded Sue Barker of England and Romania's hard-hitting Virginia Ruzici, and forged into the quarter-finals where her next opponent will be the 6-foot, 150-pound Betty Stove of The Netherlands, the Wimbledon finalist.

Pundits are giving the match a Biblical David vs. Goliath buildup.

Tracy, a ninth grade student from Rolling Hills, Calif., appears completely unaffected by her sudden spurt to fame, triggered by her center court appearance at Wimbledon but brought to fruition with her astounding performance in the Open.

Seasoned observers have begun to compare her with the immortal Helen Wills, Maureen "Little Mo" Connolly and Chris Evert. She can be compared with none of them. She has reached tennis maturity at a younger age. She has her own individual style and personality.

Not much bigger than the racket she swings with such force and accuracy, she possesses a poise and power that seem incongruous with her size and age.

In her ice cream-party dress and with her pig-tails and gleaming braces on her teeth, she looks more like a nine-year-old than one of 14. She plays like a woman of 25.

She has a snap service which she propels to the deepest corners. She hits a strong, flat forehand, giving the ball a rifle shot trajectory. Her backhand is two-fisted and deadly. There is nothing soft or tentative about her game. She hits all out, frequently leaving her feet after making racquet contact. She is a good volleyer and unafraid to storm the net.

Her court strategy is simple.

"They just keep hitting the ball harder and harder at me," she explains with a toothy grin. "Finally, they hit one too hard and make a mistake."

Future appears secure for World Series of Golf

AKRON, Ohio — The future of the revamped, enriched World Series of Golf appears secure.

"No question about it," said Jack Nicklaus, winner of the first 72-hole World Series last year. "It's the top limited field tournament in the world now."

"The new format is definitely better," said Lanny Wadkins, who succeeded Nicklaus Monday as the champion. "I don't know what room there is for improvement."

"I'm very happy with it. It was no competitive event before," Deane Beman, PGA tour commissioner, said of the old 36-hole, two-day, four-player field. "It was a television exhibition. This is a far cry from two years ago."

The old Series carried a total purse of $77,500 with $50,000 going to the winner. Now it's a $300,000 event with the richest first-place prize ever, $100,000, in a 72-hole tournament.

Parents and friends - of Chabot College football gathered Sunday for the Gladiators' annual photo - family day.

Pinch-hitters lead Royals

KANSAS CITY — Pete LaCock is a favorite subject of baseball trivia buffs, being the son of television star Peter Marshall.

John Wathan boasts a John Wayne impression that's good enough to make the Duke's own horse do a double-take.

And Joe Zdeb has baffled more than one broadcaster with his Polish surname.

A more desperate trio might be hard to find, but LaCock, Wathan and Zdeb are three hidden reasons why the Kansas City Royals have rushed to the top of the American League West.

"Just a lot of hard work," says Charlie Lau, the Royals' hitting coach. "Most of these guys are fringe players with not all the ability in the world. But somewhere along the line they've realized the secret of making it in the big leagues."

LaCock, Wathan and Zdeb are the cream of a pinch hitting corps among the most consistent in the majors this season. The Royals, whose pinch hitters batted an anemic .200 in 1976, are now racing along at a .304 pace with a league-high 30 runs batted in.

"We've really got a lot of pride. We work pretty hard and everybody's got a job to do," said LaCock, who owns a .364 pinch-hitting mark.

Wathan is batting .375 as a pinch-hitter and Zdeb stands at .357. Zdeb, a rookie, also has three of the team's eight gamewinning pinch hits, one of them with a home run.

The secret, they say,

is versatility, depth, confidence and superb handling.

Five days out for Tim Foli

SAN FRANCISCO — Shortstop Tim Foli has been suspended for five days and fined $500 by National League President Chub Feeney, the San Francisco Giants said Tuesday.

The action stemmed from a run-in between Foli and Atlanta Braves pitcher Dick Ruthven in a game in Atlanta Monday. Foli was ejected when he charged Ruthven following an exchange of words.

Umpire Bruce Froemming had said after the game that he would recommend that Foli be suspended for the rest of the season, calling Foli "a guy who doesn't belong on the ball-field."

Foli will rejoin the team Sunday in Houston, the Giants said.

Ginger Sauce, Pacara top nominees

SAN MATEO — Multiple stakes winner Pacara and Ginger Sauce are among the 15 older distaffers nominated to Saturday's sixteenth running of the $25,000-added Hillsborough Handicap at Bay Meadows.

Delaney Stock Farm's Pacara will attempt to keep her consecutive added-money win streak alive in the Hillsborough. She is already the winner of the $15,000-added Alameda County Fillies and Mares Handicap at Pleasanton, the Luther Burbank Stakes at Santa Rosa, and the $23,525 Alki Handicap at Longacres. Overall, the Argentinian-bred daughter of Dorileo has won 5 of 12 starts this year to earn a total of $74,775.

Ginger Sauce, a Washington-bred filly, put together her own string of stakes wins this summer over the Renton, Washington, oval. The Tom McLaughlin-trained daughter of Philately scored in the Everett, Fashion, and Rhododendron handicaps before running a disappointing ninth to Pacara in the Alki. Her lifetime earnings are $46,854.

Sing Back, a recent winner over the Del Mar grass course, will be making her Bay Area debut. The Florida-bred daughter of Ram-singa has won 5 of 14 starts this year for trainer Gary Jones while earning $54,100.

A pair of John Sullivan-trained mares, Lady Lt. and Fager's Star, and Our First Delight, winner of a division of the $25,000-added San Juan Bautista Handicap at Golden Gate Fields this spring, lead a strong group of Southern California nominees.

Local hopefuls nominated include Lutecia, winner of the Mamie Dotson Handicap at the San Joaquin County Fair, and Contour Miss, an allowance winner this spring at Golden Gate Fields.

Racing resumes today at San Mateo with Stanley Dishal's Miss Nipsy Ann, a stakes-placed filly on this summer's Northern California fair circuit, topping six distaffers in the $8,500 feature.

Assasins chop Oaks, 17-8

A eight-run seventh inning keyed a 17-8 victory for the Assassins over Oaks Card Room in Livermore Area Men's Recreation Men's Softball action recently.

Shane Dolera smacked a home run, two doubles and a single. Dale Fahnhorst had two doubles and a single. Daryl Paulson added a triple, double and single.

Oaks took a 4-1 lead in the second on five singles and an error. However, the winners came back with two runs in the third and one in the fourth to tie the score. Oaks took a 6-4 advantage in its half of the fourth but the victors scored four times in the sixth to take the lead for good.

The winners outthit Oaks 24-14. Ernest Champiatti had a double and three singles. Tim VanSlambroun and Gary Nero each added two singles for the losers.

High Times romped to a 7-3 win over Trinity Baptist.

The winners struck for three runs in the opening frame. D. Nunes opened with a triple and Jack Ludilo singled him in for the first run. Bob Hill then belted a two-run homer.

The losers came back with three runs in the second. Bob Martin singled and Brian Martin reached first on an error. Singles by Paul Curtis, Leon Neal and Glen Snuder brought in the three runs.

However, Rick Vanderburk smacked a home run in the bottom of the second to give the victors the lead for good.

High Times added three more runs in the fifth to conclude the scoring.

After two outs Nunes singled and Sam Lanti followed with another one-bagger. Jack Luolo doubled to score one run and an error on Bob Hill's fly ball scored two more runs.

The winners had 12 hits and Trinity collected nine.

Paul Curtis and Leon Neal each had two singles for the losers.

Body Comfort toppled Twilight Zone 12-9, scoring four times in the bottom of the fifth.

Leading just 8-7 doubles by Mark Sator and Dave Rounds plus a triple by Frank Carreid keyed the Body Comfort rally. Twilight Zone came back with two runs in the sixth on three singles but that was all she wrote.

Jim Moeart smacked a homer and a double for the losers. Alan Eisenbarth had a double and two singles for the winners. Dave Rounds had a double and two singles for the victors.

Kelly's Cardinals topped Granada Bowl 9-5. The winners had 24 hits and Granada picked up 13.

PITTSBURGH — His baseball nickname is classically commonplace. His pitching isn't.

"They call me 'Lefty,'" says Steve Carlton, the first 20-game winner in the major leagues this season and a 6-foot-5 reason why the Philadelphia Phillies are closing in on their second straight division championship in the National League East.

Carlton, whose relaxed, lowkicking delivery is one of the game's smoothest, wasn't at his best in the second game of a doubleheader here Monday, but he raised his record to 20-8 as the Phils romped 11-1 over second-place Pittsburgh.

"We got the big guy a lot of runs. When we get him that many, he's gonna crank up something for us," said shortstop Larry Bowa.

The big guy got himself a couple of runs. Carlton, a capable hitter, helped himself with a home run and a run-scoring single.

He pitched with only three days' rest and allowed eight hits in eight innings before leaving the game due to fatigue. "It appeared he had good stuff from the results, but he really didn't have his overpowering stuff," said catcher Tim McCarver.

McCarver should know. Bob Boone is the Phillies' regular catcher, but McCarver always catches Carlton because Carlton wants it that way.

"I pretty much put the game in the hands of Timmy," said Carlton, whose association with McCarver began when both were with St. Louis. "He calls the pitches and I just go ahead and pitch the game I'm capable of. We've been working excellently together."

McCarver wasn't with St. Louis in 1971, the year Carl-ton managed a 20-9 record. The next season they were reunited in Philadelphia and Carlton earned the 1972 Cy Young Award with 27-10 record.

Carlton and the Phils skidded over the next three seasons. His combined record during 1973-1975 was 44-47. But he finished 20-7 last year by winning on the final day of the season.

"I've been making good pitches," said Carlton, a relaxed, low-key sort. "I don't think I've had the consistency I had in 1972 when I won all those games."

49ers Waive Moore

SAN FRANCISCO — Veteran running back Manfred Moore and three other players were placed on waivers Tuesday as the San Francisco 49ers reduced their squad to the mandatory 48 player limit.

Moore, a fourth year pro from Southern California, had been obtained earlier on waivers from the Oakland Raiders. He played for the 49ers in 1974 and 1975 and for the Raiders and Tampa Bay in 1976.

LEGAL NOTICE

A black and white photograph capturing a scene of rural life. In the foreground, a person wearing a wide-brimmed hat is seen from behind, tending to a dense vine-covered trellis. The trellis is laden with large, heart-shaped leaves. In the background, a traditional building with a tiled roof is visible. Another person is perched on the ridge of the roof, possibly working on it. The scene is set outdoors, with trees and foliage visible in the distance. The overall atmosphere is one of quiet, traditional labor.

RENO, Nev. (AP) — As many as 27 divers searched deep pools and underwater tree branches in the Truckee River Tuesday looking for the body of a Martinez girl who has been missing since Saturday.

Lisa Bonham, 6, disappeared from Reno's Idlewild Park and her clothes subsequently were found in a trash bin at an Interstate 80 scenic view rest stop about six miles west of here.

The volunteer divers went to Verdi, a town just west of Reno, where they were instructed to look for the girl's body or possibly a bag or sleeping bag. Searchers have unsuccessfully combed land along the Truckee five miles into California.

The FBI said it was ready to enter the case but an FBI spokesman said there would have to be evidence of a crime involving the crossing of a state line before the federal agency could be called in to assist.

Meanwhile, a reward fund of $13,000 has been gathered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the girl's abductor or abductors.

Increased traffic "partly accounts for accident increases, but higher speeds and drinking drivers are responsible as well," the commissioner said.

He won't be sued for building

PLEASANTON — City council will be asked to approve a zoning change for 22 townhouses along the future Del Valle Parkway, but the request will not spur further legal action by angry neighbors.

Darwin Datwyler wants some 2.6 acres between the Arroyo Del Valle and the future parkway changed from multiple family zoning to a planned unit development. He wants to build 22, two-story townhouses.

Late last month the Pleasanton Safe Streets Association filed suit against the city and Morrison Homes to block the developer's planned 65-unit project along the future parkway.

Homeowners, who want the four-lane parkway to trace the Arroyo Del Valle and not cut in front of their homes, claim the Environmental Impact Report is inadequate.

But association spokeswoman Olga Morrow said yesterday the group "probably wouldn't" sue Datwyler since "our gripe is not with him or the church."

Valley Community Church also plans to build along the proposed parkway.

"But we'll be there" when council considers Datwyler's request at its Sept. 20 meeting, Morrow hastily added.

"If we win the first (suit), that portion will take care of itself," she said.

The association says the EIR fails to consider added traffic in the residential neighborhood if the now two-lane street is expanded to a four-lane thoroughfare.

If the safe streets group wins, Datwyler's lot would be "chopped up," Morrow said.

Bay cruise to honor Floyd Mori

A harbor cruise on San Francisco Bay will be held Saturday, Oct. 1 in honor of Assemblyman Floyd Mori (D-Pleasanton), the Floyd Mori Campaign Committee announced.

The boat will board both in Oakland and San Francisco. In Oakland, the Harbor King will depart from the Clay Street Pier at 5 p.m., and in San Francisco from Pier 41 at 4:15 p.m.

The cost is $25 per passenger which includes a buffet, hosted bar, and dancing.

The boat will return to Oakland at 8 p.m. and to San Francisco at 8:30 p.m. For more information, call 581-6572.

Boat blast

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A 39-foot sloop exploded and sank at the San Francisco Yacht Club, but police said they were unable to determine the cause of the blast. There were no injuries.

Police Lt. Richard Shippy said although the origin of the explosion was "undetermined," San Francisco police intelligence had been alerted through sources last week that the New World Liberation Front might bomb yachts in the harbor.

He said no special patrols had been planned in light of the information, but added that the marina was part of normal checks by cruising squad cars.

Within the past two weeks, the NWLF has struck on four separate occasions, including bombings at a Pacific Gas & Electric substation in Sausalito and the plush Olympic Club in San Francisco. An undetonated device outside the private Pacific Union Club here was found by police and disarmed.

"We don't know if this explosion is related," Shippy said.
